The Dahlgren Family Papers (1818-1934) are centered around the Dahlgren family, prominent Tennessee family of the nineteenth century. The Dahlgren Family Papers are a gift of John A. Dahlgren of Manchester, Tennessee.

Linear feet of shelf space occupied: 1.47
Approximate number of items: ca. 500

Single photocopies of unpublished writings in the Dahlgren Family Papers may be made for purposes of scholarly research.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The Dahlgren Family Papers, containing approximately 500 items, span the period 1818-1934, although the bulk of the material is largely concentrated in the early twentieth century. The collection is composed of account books, booklets, clippings, correspondence, genealogical data, photographs, scrapbooks, writings and several miscellaneous items.

The mass of the collection is comprised of correspondence. John A. Dahlgren (1870-1938) was a historian and amateur genealogist, and the bulk of the correspondence is genealogical in nature. A small amount of the correspondence is between John A. Dahlgren and his immediate family members. There are two letters from the United States Navy Admiral, John Dahlgren.

The clippings deal with family history and several are concerned with the friends of the Dahlgren family. The booklets are centered around events and places connected with the Dahlgren family.

Included in the photograph collection are the members of the Dahlgren family as well as rare Matthew Brady and Alexander Gardner photographs.

Several books were removed to the library collection.

Although small, the collection is important because it allows the researcher to view the history of an important family from its arrival in the United States to the mid-1930's, as well as providing historical information concerning Tennessee in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.
